Dear Mr. Gottschlich,

I am a regular customer at Lidl. I am writing to you as I am extremely perturbed by Lidl's performance on pesticide issues. Pesticide Action Network UK's findings concerning Lidl in their study on Supermarkets' pesticide performance has highlighted many areas of concern to me.

I am concerned about the amount of pesticides used and residues that might be present in the food I and my family consume. I want to choose safe and healthy food and want to be reassured that my supermarket is taking measures to provide me with that.

Hence I am asking you to

- Share your pesticide residue test results
- Commit to phasing out the most hazardous pesticides in your supply chain
- Share the lists of pesticides you are working on limiting and eliminating.
- Invest in research and support (financial and technical) towards minimising the use of pesticides and identifying safer alternatives.
- Promote bee friendly farming practices. I am concerned with the declining numbers of bees and butterflies and would really like you to ensure that your farming practices are not contributing towards this decline.
- Reduce the use of pesticides for cosmetic purposes. I would prefer to eat fruit and vegetables with minor blemishes than them be doused with multiple pesticides.

As your loyal customer I hope that you share my apprehensions about these issues and will take action on them. I look forward to hearing about your progress in this area.

Regards,
